

Books by Sir Muhammad Zafrulla Khan

This book describes Islamic religious practices in full, and presents in a moving style the basic beliefs of Muslims. This book provides an inside view of a faith that commands the devotion of nearly one-eighth of the world's population.

The author explains how 1400 years ago, Islam emancipated the poor and oppressed and gave the world the basic prescription for the respect and value of all human beings irrespective of class, colour or creed.

An inspiring selection of sayings of the Holy Prophet (ﷺ) on 12 topics that include family, social and economic and moral values, public affairs, etc that are the basis of Islamic teachings as taught by the Holy Qur'an.

Sir Muhammad Zafrulla Khan was President of the 17th session of the General Assembly of the United Nations. He served as President and Judge of the International Court of Justice in The Hague, and as Foreign Minister of Pakistan. For many years he led the Pakistan Delegation to the General Assembly of the United Nations. He was an eminent scholar in the field of comparative religion and the author of a number of books about Islam and about its comparison with other faiths.
